

2018 Hormel Symposium

Leadership Academy

Imagination Unleashed

Presented by: Jennifer Stancil
President and CEO, Glazer Children's Museum
Tampa, Florida

Tuesday, June 19: Austin High School
Registration and Breakfast 7:30 – 8:15 AM
Workshop: 8:30 AM – 2:30 PM

Imagine a school where everyone is included, enabled and empowered to dream and excel by creating a bright future fueled by imagination. Leadership Academy is designed to provide leaders with an opportunity to dream and create an action plan that supports creativity, problem solving and critical thinking. In this session leaders will work with Jennifer Stancil to explore how schools can become a learning laboratory where students discover and connect with the world around them to develop as lifelong learners and leaders. Join Jennifer Stancil and your colleagues for an unforgettable day that puts imagination into action.

Jennifer Stancil has worked at McWane Science Center, Marbles Kids Museum (formerly Exploris) and the Carnegie Science Center prior to moving to take the helm of the Glazer Children's Museum, named one of the top ten Children's Museums in the nation in 2016. BrainCake, a website she created to encourage girls and STEM, won the coveted Roy L. Schafer Leading Edge Award from the Association of Science and Technology Centers. She is a MacArthur Digital Media Learning Competition winner for an augmented reality-based spy school, Click!, and an Emmy® Award Winner for a national parenting show she created for PBS Affiliates called iQ: smartparent. She currently serves on the National Advisory Boards of the National Girls Collaborative Project, as well as to Superhero School (working title), a PBS Children's television show in current production.

$75.00 registration fee includes breakfast, morning beverages, lunch and materials.
